I hope this help. Is someone on the outside looking in? Adolescents' perceptions of the fieldwork assistant. Fieldwork assistants (FWA) play an important role in the ethical conduct of social science research. The inclusion of FWA in research projects encourages youth with disabilities to participate in research. However, there is limited information about the ways in which FWA are perceived in the fieldwork process, particularly by youth with disabilities. This study addresses this gap by describing adolescents' perceptions of the work of their FWA in support of a larger study of youth with ADHD and their siblings. Across the range of participants, the majority of adolescents felt that their FWA and the researchers were on the same page and had similar goals, although the FWA played a more active role. There was no evidence that adolescents perceived the FWA as having any additional power over the researchers and the FWA.
